Executive Director's Message: Looking Back and Moving Forward

I am pleased to welcome you to our first newsletter! For those who may not know, SALT (Serving and Learning Together) world Inc. is a nonprofit organization committed to improving the lives of poor and excluded people throughout the world. Our volunteers work alongside locals on poverty-alleviating projects in order to make a real and lasting impact on our global community. Our organization has been operating for about one year, but we have so much to be thankful for in 2015!

As you will see in this newsletter, we have managed to complete projects in Haiti, Turkey, and Tanzania. Given our humble beginnings, it is truly amazing to reflect on what we have accomplished. I would like to extend my sincerest gratitude to our donors, volunteers, and SALTworld board members. We could not have done it without you! Rest assured that your kindness and generosity is appreciated and has made a huge difference in the lives of many throughout the world.

As we move into 2016, we have several projects in development. You can find details further down, but I hope that you will consider supporting us again this year. We strive to be good stewards of your money and, to that end, we keep our overhead low. The majority of donations are applied toward communities where our projects are located. We will remain a small, lean organization for that reason.

Remember, all donations are 100% tax deductible! We humbly ask that you also reach out to friends and family members and let them know about us. We would also encourage you to determine if your companies have charitable matching programs. Our goal is to help as many people as possible and we cannot do this without your support.

Another one of our goals is to connect with one another through serving and learning. If you have a calling to serve others, enjoy traveling, and exploring various cultures, I hope you will consider joining us in July in Tanzania. Volunteers will have the opportunity to participate in social change projects and also enjoy a private safari and a vacation to the Island of Zanzibar. It will be a once in a lifetime experience!

As always, I look forward to your comments, questions, and thoughts. Please feel free to contact me at 574-904-8186 or via email at info@SALT-world.org.

Summary of 2015 Projects in Tanzania

1. Keni Dispensary

Many people walk for over 15 plus miles to have their babies or seek treatment for themselves or their children at a dispensary. Dispensaries provide medication, HIV testing, etc. People often go to a local dispensary because they have no transportation to reach a hospital and/or cannot afford to be seen at a hospital. In order for the government to staff the dispensary with a medical doctor, toilets must be built outside the dispensary. Last year the main building of the dispensary was complete with a pharmacy, two rooms, and a lab. Due to your generous donations last year, you can see the progress on the outside toilet already built below. This year Moore Counseling and Meditation Services from Cleveland sponsored SALTworld's Keni project and raised $5,000 to help complete the toilets! SALTworld Inc. also donated much needed medical supplies for the pharmacy located within the Keni Dispensary.

2. Sambarai Kindergarten Program

Last year a kindergarten program was established in Sambarai/Kirima. This is the only kindergarten program offered for children in the area. Sambarai now has 80 students and two teachers. This year 28 students graduated and will go on to primary school. Each student after receiving his or her diploma received a brand new pair of shoes, a toy, and candy from SALTworld. This year, SALTworld also donated money to go towards a teacher's salary for two school years and uniforms for the school children. The school also received soccer balls for recess time.

3. St. Francis Primary School

St. Francis is the only primary school for students with disabilities in Moshi, Tanzania. There are 302 students enrolled ages 5-12, and approximately 180 students live at the school. Many students have hearing, visual, and auditory impairments. This school not only has children with disabilities, but helps protect children who are Albino. Children who are Albino have been kidnapped and their body parts sold on the market in the past. This year SALTworld donated money to build a new dining hall for the children so children no longer have to eat off the ground. In the pictures, you will see the start of the new dining hall. The old dining hall is not big enough for the 302 students that attend. SALTworld also donated brand new closed toed shoes for the children and soccer balls. Our volunteers spent time with the children at St. Francis. They also helped hand wash the bedding and clothes for the children.

4. Mawenzi Hospital

In Tanzania, the government does not provide disability or assistance to anyone diagnosed with a mental health disorder or disability. Over the years, Dr. Flamez, along with other colleagues, helped raise money to provide new beds and medication for the psychiatric wing. This year, SALTworld raised money to continue to supply the psychiatric wing with medications for a full year.

Our volunteers spent time at the psychiatric wing of Mawenzi hospital with Dr. Ringo. He is a retired psychiatrist who came back to the hospital because they were in such need of his help. He is the only psychiatrist in the area and treats hundreds of patients. Dr. Ringo and his staff took the time to explain to volunteers what mental health looks like in Tanzania, and the unique challenges he faces. In this area those with severe mental health illness are often the forgotten and last to receive medication.

5. Upendo Orphanage

Upendo (means love in Swahili) Orphanage houses 16 girls, 15 boys, and 8 babies from birth to five-years-old. Some children have been found abandoned on a roadside or both parents have died. SALTworld donated money to the orphanage to purchase formula, medication, and food for all the children. Closed toed shoes and soccer balls were donated too. Volunteers of SALTworld spent the day helping play, feed, and bathe the children.

Turkey: Autism Outreach

The Mental Health Association of Narlıdere, established in 1999, founded Nar Taneleri Special Education and Rehabilitation Center in 2007 and Nar Taneleri Undisabled Life House in 2009. The center is located in Narlıdere, Izmir. The center currently serves 200 students. 80 students are diagnosed with Autism Spectrum Disorder, 30 students have physically disabled, and 90 students are diagnosed with another mental health disorder. Many of the parents of these children are poor and unable to provide support services for their children. SALTworld supported Nar Taneleri Special Education and Rehabilitation Center by raising funds to build a garden to help grow food and a fire escape for those with disabilities.

In December our CEO, Dr. Brande Flamez, spent time with the children and younger adults at the centers. The first center is for younger children diagnosed with Autism Spectrum disorder or a physical disability. The children receive one-on-one treatment. The other center is for young adults diagnosed with Autism Spectrum Disorder or a learning disability and focuses on life skills, mental health therapy, and occupational therapy. Many of the older adults spend all day here, as they are unable to afford private services. New Year's party for the children with a famous local TV star and band. The students danced their hearts out and had a blast interacting with the entertainers. The children presented SALTworld with a handmade ceramic and plate.

2016 Social Change Projects

SALTworld is working with community leaders in Haiti, Tanzania, and Turkey. For more information, please visit our website.

Tanzania (July 2016)

Tanzania is one of the world's poorest countries in terms of per capita income with the average person living on less than $1 per day. The country ranks 12th in the world for HIV/AIDS adult prevalence rate, a fact that leaves many children orphaned and without family support. The 2016 social change projects we are working to support include:

1. Keni Medical Dispensary: Building a laboratory for a medical dispensary

SALTworld is raising money to help build a lab outside the dispensary that will have adequate testing equipment for various medical conditions and provide proper diagnosis and treatment. Medical supplies are also being collected for the pharmacy.

2. Sambarai: Supporting a kindergarten program and helping build a medical dispensary

The village where the school is located has no dispensary for children and people if they become ill. The dispensary started 20 years ago and remains incomplete. When completed, the dispensary will help provide medical treatment to over 15,000 people in the surrounding area. Our goal is to continue to fundraise and complete the building of the dispensary. In addition, we are fundraising to help provide a salary for two kindergarten teachers. We are also collecting size 10-1 children's closed-toed tennis shoes and toys to give to each child graduating in December 2016.

3. St. Francis Primary School: Building housing for teachers

SALTworld is raising money to build adequate housing quarters for teachers. These teachers live at the school and, as you can see below, the living quarters are not suited for teachers with a family due to minimal privacy. We also want to purchase adequate bedding for teachers. Additionally, SALTworld is raising money to build a room specific for children with hearing and visual impairments. This room will include necessary equipment. We are also collecting new closed-toed shoes sizes 7 toddler to size 2.

4. Mawenzi Hospital Psychiatric Unit: Providing a year's supply of medications

In Tanzania, the government does not provide disability or assistance to anyone diagnosed with a mental health disorder or disability. Dr. Ringo, the psychiatrist of the unit, described this wing as being filled with "the abandoned and forgotten." Patients are often the last to receive any support. SALTworld is raising money to purchase beds for the men's section, as they currently do not have any. SALTworld is also raising money to purchase new mattresses for the women's section and medication for the entire unit for a year.

5. Upendo Orphanage: Providing Food and Medication

Upendo Orphanage houses 16 girls, 15 boys, and 8 babies. Many children have been found abandoned or their mothers passed while giving birth. We are raising money to provide a year's supply of formula, medication, and food for all children. We are also collecting size 0-8 children sized, closed-toed shoes.

6. Mawenge Catholic University (MWECAU) Dispensary: Providing microscopes for university medical dispensary

The university recently built a medical dispensary outside of the school so they could serve not only their students, but also people in the surrounding community. Currently, they are in need of microscopes to diagnose and treat medical illnesses. SALTworld is fundraising to help purchase a microscope for the lab.

Haiti Trauma Project (December 2016)

In Haiti, over 50% of primary school-aged children are not enrolled in school. At the primary level, less than 10% of schools are public, which limits educational opportunities. Given that 30% of children able to attend primary school will not make it to 3rd grade and because 60% will abandon school before 6th grade, the population's illiteracy rate is almost 60%, one of the highest in the Western Hemisphere.

The development of universal education in Haiti is key to economic recovery. In fact, the Director General of UNESCO stated that "education is at the core of Haiti's recovery and is the key to Haiti's development." Unfortunately, one of the most important challenges to this development is the shortage of qualified teachers in Haiti. Prior to the 2010 earthquake, the World Bank stated that Haiti required 2,000 new teachers each year to reach the goal of universal education. After the earthquake, the only public teacher-training institute of Haiti was destroyed.

For that reason, the Haitian American Caucus (HAC)-Haiti (a non-profit organization), runs Ecole Shalom, a school for children in grades K-12. HAC charges a small fee for students to attend; however, no child is refused an education. Families who cannot pay continue to reap benefits of a quality education and school resources. In addition, HAC facilitates an annual teacher summer institute training for over 100 teachers in the Croix-Des-Bouquets and Port-au-Prince, Haiti area, which is among the most populated regions in the country.

The Haiti Trauma Project, founded by Florence Saint-Jean, is a trauma intervention program in Haiti that supports Ecole Shalom at the HAC compound. Faculty members, students, and professionals from the United States will travel to Haiti to conduct one week of activities for the children, which include:

1. Sexual Abuse Workshop
2. Trauma Intervention Workshop
3. Field Day activities
4. Holiday Party for over 350 children

Furthermore, the Haiti Trauma Project provides trauma assessment and intervention training for Haitian professionals. The project is coordinated with university faculty and students, community leaders, and agencies in the U.S., in a collaborative international trauma research and clinical training program. This project provides mental health training focusing on pathways to care, barriers to treatment, and engagement strategies that influence service usage.

SALTworld is helping raise money to support the Haiti Trauma project. Funds for The Haiti Trauma Project at Ecole Shalom will be applied toward:

1. Food to feed children for the week
2. Staffing teachers for the week
3. Purchase of supplies and resources to run activities such as: academic supplies, toys, utensils, plates, etc.

Turkey (June 2016) Autism Outreach: Helping Build an Ecological Reservoir

SALTworld also is working with the Nar Taneleri Special Education and Rehabilitation Center to assist with the creation of an ecological farm and house in the Izmir Province of Turkey that will benefit individuals with autism spectrum disorders and other physical and intellectual disabilities. This development of the farm is designed to help these individuals to become self-sufficient and to learn create a sustainable environment. The farm will include a rainwater harvest, an edible garden, and a greywater storage system. Additionally, they will have the opportunity to care for chickens, sheep, and goats, as well as managing a butterfly and bee-friendly garden. Ultimately, we want them to be able to live independently and provide for themselves. We believe that is important to teach people to fish rather than to simply give them a fish.

Student Corner

The opportunity to change lives doesn't just present itself when you graduate. As a student, you can use your compassion, energy, and selflessness to begin making a positive impact on the world. By becoming involved with SALTworld Inc., you have the chance to build awareness, raise funds, and educate others around the globe about our core values of commitment, leadership, and volunteerism. When you help people in need, you learn how you can make an impact on the world and help heal humanity. Even if you cannot travel to be directly involved in one of our projects, there are other ways you can help.

Read the following story from Robyn Srader-Lee, a Lamar University graduate, for an example how you can make a difference as a student.

Everyone is born, but not everyone is born into a world of good fortune. We put on our superhero capes, as children, and imagine saving the world. As teenagers, we realize that we can do more to help create change by simply recycling, cleaning up beaches, or volunteering in our local communities. Years go by and like most, I was ready to move into the world and make a difference. Across the globe, I was witnessing hunger, poverty, and abuse. There is always room for improvement I thought, so where do I begin? I looked into traveling to other countries in need, but as a graduate student, I could not find the means to do so. Feeling discouraged, I said to myself, "Who am I to get involved? I am just trying to survive day to day myself". Shortly after this moment of feeling helpless, I looked around and acknowledged the fact that I have a pretty good life. Some would even say I live like royalty compared to many other individuals in the world living without running water or a warm bed to sleep in at night. So who am I to become involved? I am a human being who has the power to create a better world by simply helping just one person at a time. The smallest bit of change in a positive direction is progress.

I learned of SALTworld Inc. and the social change projects happening in Tanzania. The pictures of the children there melted my heart. I know that a child needs opportunities to learn, thrive, and satisfy one's natural curiosity. What better way to stimulate a child's growing mind than through play. I had the opportunity to donate toys that were distributed to Sambarai's kindergarten graduates and so many more. Although one day I would love to travel to see their smiling faces in person, I know I can still make a difference from right where I am now. No matter where you are in the world or how old you are, there is no need to wait another day to help improve someone's life.

Change happens every day by those who volunteer, donate, and spread awareness of those in need. I am grateful to be involved with such a generous organization."

SALTworld would like to extend a thank you to members of the Alpha Chi Chapter of the Chi Sigma Iota International Honors Society at Louisiana State University for collecting medical supplies for the Keni Dispensary and the Mu Sigma Chi Chapter at Murray State University for collecting soccer balls for St. Francis primary school, Upendo Orphanage, and the Sambarai kindergarten program in Tanzania.

Volunteers Corner

Martina Moore, Rebecca Pender, and Brandé Flamez recently returned from a volunteer trip to Tanzania where they engaged in social change projects at local schools, a medical dispensary, orphanage, and hospital. Drs. Pender and Moore highlight their once in a lifetime experience.

Martina Moore:

“My experience in Africa was amazing! My thoughts before I arrived were that I would not have a connection with the people. I was surprised and delighted to find that I had much in common with the people, and that even though they had such great needs, they gave so much to me from their heart. The poverty was overwhelming, but the African people have found a way to live and still have joy. I was ashamed and envious many days to think about my own resources of plenty and not always experiencing the level of joy that they have. Africa is a place of such rich history and great strength. The people are extremely resourceful and grateful for any help that is given. What amazed me the most was that so little money compared to American standards can go so far in Africa.

The smiles of children, the hugs of the adults, the food and fellowship daily, kept me encouraged and humbled to be among such beautiful people. I went thinking I had so much to give, and found out that I was receiving so much more. I returned to America telling everyone that they should experience Africa at least once in their life. The culture, the commitment to their faith, and the strong family foundation is beyond anything that I had ever experienced in America. My goal is to continue to work with SALTworld to provide needed resources in Africa, but most of all to continue to experience Africa and receive the gift of joy from the African people.”

Rebecca Pender:

“Indescribable and life changing! That is how I would describe my trip to Tanzania with SALTworld. Let me start from the beginning. I did everything in my power to talk myself out of going. I tried to think of every possible reason why I should not go. Eventually, I ran out of reasons and booked my flight. Once I did that, I chose to raise money to support the kindergarten program at Sambarai. While I connected in different ways to each of the places we visited, this one was the most meaningful for me. I felt like I was really a part of the community. We were able to throw the kids their first Christmas party and participate in the program’s first graduation. The excitement on their faces was breathtaking and filled my heart with joy, excitement, and hope.

As a mental health counselor and professor in counselor education, I also was greatly impacted by the visit to Mawenzi Hospital, specifically the psychiatric unit. SALTworld was able to donate money to help pay for medication for the psychiatric unit. The conditions at the hospital were like I have never seen before. While donations have helped to buy new wooden beds and mattress pads, there are still many beds that are wire framed with no mattresses. What I saw here was a need for more services for those who suffer from mental illness. The psychiatrist and hospital staff were great and allowed us to share some suggestions for how to move forward and meet the needs of the community. It was fascinating to hear about their approach to treating mental health issues and to learn how much they are able to do with so little. This is something I think I often take for granted in my life.

While I could write all day about each and every place we visited, the last I will focus on is St. Francis Primary School. This school currently has over 300 students and serves those with disabilities. The school works with a lot of albino children and helps to protect them from those that may want to hurt them. Often times, albino children are taken and their body parts are sold for witchcraft. I cannot imagine living in fear for my life or those of my family members like many in this community do. Here we were able to donate soccer balls and tennis shoes, and SALTworld fundraised to help pay for a new dining hall. We had the opportunity to help the school with washing laundry. This was really hard work, but what I found captivating was that while we were all struggling with washing laundry, the kids came up and were eager to help and show us what we were doing wrong. They really took pride in the work they were doing.

All I can say is that this trip changed my life and provided renewed hope and optimism about the importance of social change projects. I never had to worry about medical care. If I was sick or hurt, I went to the doctor. I never had to worry about getting an education. I don’t even mean college. Many of these families struggle to pay for their kid’s early education. I was not raised with a lot of money, but I had what I needed and participated in most any activity I wanted. My parents worked hard to provide this for me. I now understand this. The biggest life lesson I gained from this experience is that family, faith, and community are the keys to happiness. The people I met in Africa were incredible examples of maintaining commitment to family, faith, and hope. If you are thinking about joining SALTworld in their next trip in July, do it! You will have an amazing and emotional perspective altering experience that you will never forget.”

TANZANIA SALTworld EXPERIENCE JULY 2016

This trip to Tanzania will be a life-changing event for anyone who wants to be immersed in another culture and also have a profound impact on the lives of many. You will be completely off the grid on the southeastern coast of Africa, where you will experience the thrill of a safari and the tropical island of Zanzibar off the coast of Tanzania. Along the way, you will participate in social change projects while serving and learning from others.

Trip overview:

Your journey will begin in Kilimanjaro, Tanzania. We will travel one hour to Moshi, Tanzania. During your first week, you will be engaged in a variety of social change projects and serving the local community, as well as learning from the resilient people. You will first have the opportunity to tour a dispensary that SALT world is committed to helping complete. The dispensary serves approximately 12,000 people! Next, you will spend the day at a primary school that is home to many children with disabilities. You will have experience working with the children, washing clothes, and helping maintain their garden. Furthermore, you will spend a day at Mawenzi Hospital/ Psychiatric Unit and learn about mental health care in Tanzania. The following day, while at Upendo Orphanage, you will interact with the children. You will spend the day playing with the children, feeding them, and helping them during nap time. You also will visit Sambarai, where a kindergarten program was established, and meet the teachers and children. You will help with the building of the dispensary as well as spend time with the teachers and the children of the school. You will also tour the local university and meet with faculty members, students, and staff who run the dispensary.

After the social change projects, you will experience breathtaking views as you embark on a private safari through the wide-open and endless Serengeti plains and the wildlife haven of the Ngorongoro Crater. You will see phenomenal wildlife in its natural habitat. Starting in Ngorongoro, you will descend 2000 feet to the floor of the crater and explore the forest areas that are inhabited by monkeys and elephants, the lake area, where you may see flamingos and the open savannah where lions hunt for food. You will then enter into the Serengeti, which is the largest and most famous park in Tanzania, known worldwide for its endless plains, wildebeest-migration, herds of lions and other predators such as hyenas, cheetahs and leopards.

After completing your safari, you will fly to the Island of Zanzibar, which lies approximately 23 miles off the coast of Tanzania in the Indian Ocean, and offers white sandy beaches, snorkeling, and immense, rich history. The Island has attracted travelers from all over the world as the island is known as “Spice Island” for its rich spices and history as Old Stone Town, which was one of the main centers of East African slave trading. You will tour the winding streets lined with shops and bazaars as well as experience the local culture. Zanzibar is also a snorkeler’s dream due to vast amount of coral and tropical fish.

This project will be led by Dr. Brande Flamez, SALT world’s CEO. Brande has traveled all over the world engaging in social change projects, and this is her fifth trip to Tanzania. She is excited to answer any questions you might have and share how this trip allows participants to serve others, but will impact their own life as well.

Creating a SALTworld Day!

Mark your calendars for April 26th, 2016! Join SALT (Serving and Learning Together) world on Tuesday, April 26th to be part of a global celebration of a new tradition of serving.

It's a simple idea. Just find a way for you, your family, your community, or company to come together to serve others and perform an act of kindness. Wear your SALT world t-shirt, take a picture of yourself or others, perform an act of kindness, and share it with us! We want to show the world how you, your family, or community come together for one common purpose: to celebrate serving others!

Please email your picture and story to info@SALT-world.org. We will post your story on our website and Facebook page.

T-shirts Available

Show your support by purchasing a SALTworld t-shirt. All proceeds go directly to the 2016 social change projects. To purchase your t-shirt go to <http://salt-world.org>

How You Can Help

Donate

SALTworld is a non-profit organization that does not receive government funding. Your generous tax-deductible gift will support our host communities and project beneficiaries in Haiti, Tanzania, and Turkey. You can help communities in the developing world by becoming a donor or participant. We invite you to give to poverty-alleviating, sustainable projects and programs developed and delivered to meet the specific needs of each unique community. By becoming a donor, you become part of the growing community of active global citizens who want real, lasting, and positive change in the world. Please consider visiting <http://salt-world.org> to make a donation.

Volunteer

Join us on our trip to Tanzania! Volunteers are always welcome in our programs and fundraising events.

Fundraise

In addition to collecting funds for various projects, our organization is collecting the following items: brand new closed-toed shoes for ages birth to 5 years old for Upendo Orphanage, brand new closed-toed shoes for ages 4-6 for Sambarai Kindergarten children, school supplies for St. Francis primary school, medications for Keni and Sambari dispensaries, and two brand new lab microscopes. We are also collecting 400 toothbrushes for children at the schools and orphanage.
